The Restoration of the Lost: An Analysis of Larry D. Harper's Theological Authority and the "Voice of Elijah" Narrative

Executive Summary

This report provides an exhaustive, expert-level analysis of the theological claims, self-designation, and ecclesiastical assertions of Larry D. Harper, the founder of The Elijah Project and the primary author behind The Voice of Elijah newsletter. The central objective of this research is to determine the extent to which Harper claims to be the unique discloser of a body of knowledge he terms "The Apostolic Teaching" and whether he views his vocation as the exclusive restoration of the "oral teachings of Moses" in the eschatological timeframe he identifies as the "last days."

The analysis draws upon a comprehensive corpus of primary source documents, newsletters, and digital publications disseminated by Voice of Elijah, Inc. The findings indicate that while Harper frequently adopts the title of "Teacher" rather than "Prophet," his theological framework is constructed upon a rigid narrative of total apostasy—the assertion that the Christian Church "completely lost" the core Truth of the Gospel and the Apostolic Teaching circa A.D. 200. Consequently, by positioning himself as the sole instrument chosen by God to "restore" this lost
